Supporting unplanned needs and opportunities

What are pop-up seminars?

In organisations, the best opportunities are sometimes the unplanned ones. Forward planning or corporate wide programs can't meet every team or individual need. So welcome to pop-ups - our short notice workshops that help you to seize the opportunity and fulfill that need.

Through our pop-ups you can access specialized content typically reserved for our clients and their in-house programs. Over the past two decades, we've carefully honed these frameworks and processes, blending peer-reviewed research, expert insights, and real-world applications. The result? Frameworks that shed light on the complexities faced by leaders and teams, offering practical solutions and invaluable perspectives.

Why pop-up seminars?

Pop-up seminars revolve around responsive decision making and the unscheduled opportunities that can significantly contribute to achieving success.

In the realm of organizational development, strategic corporate programs and annual learning and development plans hone in on well-defined objectives. However, amidst these planned approaches, there are evolving, unforeseen opportunities that can play a pivotal role in driving progress.

These unplanned possibilities keep leaders and teams responsive to real world needs. Forward planning can make life seem straightforward, but in reality, progress is a journey of exploration and discovery.

Our pop-up seminars support responsive teams with options they need to navigate the ever-changing pathways to success. With new topics offered each time, they are here to help you address today's need.
